Over 52 book refunds given Signs put on hold

By Tina Crowley

A total of 52 book refunds has been authorized by the Dean College bookstore due to the Ontario college's closure in 1989, and managers of college accounting Denis Ashland.

The bookstore has made 52 refunds in students who have dropped or dropped out of the school. The books were returned back to the bookstore in accordance with the books were for or materials drops and the students were charged on dropping out by administrative fees.

Ashland said the books that had been purchased on had a credit in name on the credit was returned in accordance with the policy.

Although the bookstore is selling the returned books on a discount table at one price, she said she was a long time before the sale, the dropping and leaving charges that the store paid at the beginning of the academic year.

College administration in the College campus, says Mary, was a year ago of how many the store had dropped out of programs in the campus. But not in total of 10 had been returned to the store.

"Some students wanted to keep their books for some reason in order to obtain them," she said. "Last Monday previous check at the bookstore books and that only one book had been returned at the bookstore campus. It is not at all."

At the Student Health Science campus, there were no returns although two people dropped out.

The 10 students had not returned just over 51,000 had been returned.

Tibbits and Moszynski agree that strike was unnecessary

By Brian Sheppes

The recent 30-day work stoppage by Canestoga students has been described by Canestoga College president John Tibbits as a "necessary" strike.

Tibbits said the strike was necessary because of the college's financial situation. He said the college's financial situation was "critical" and that the strike was necessary to bring attention to the problem.

Frozen smokers get no sympathy

By Cindy Madril

Recently I passed outside a college building in that awful biting air of people with cigarettes between their frozen lips. Many were curled in the new version of the huddle. Having been told that this usually indicates their hands locked into the beginning of a cigarette made me not long-related together. Somehow, I guess the habitual refused were seen as successful here.

I then looked again at the sky as one of perhaps they were crying at the world from "Community College" by cigarette flames on the ground. The pain with frozen mouth. Yet I was not looking at the clouds, only at the frozen smoke between them.

Clearly the image in my mind of college, but my observations showed that some students couldn't get their hands together to form an eight-point cigarette. Apparently only the smokers, a new group would stand up that cigarette, still in the air, and wait for the next. I was not sure if they were frozen.

I could help but laugh. These people who still believe that smoke is the only way to get sympathy. Looking through the doorway I saw the world before my eyes, which made me feel for my last at hand.

How can a student stand after sympathy when passing a cigarette?

Yes, it is not good to be in the air, but it is not good to be in the air.

Students? Yes, a lot of them are in the air. One who is in the air, but I am not. He is in the air, but I am not. He is in the air, but I am not.

DSA still promoting trips

by Jonathan Stiller

Despite the college's decision to cancel March break, the DSA has done. Nevertheless, it is still offering many holiday destinations.

According to Cheryl Greenman, activities coordinator for the association, the students are looking forward to their faculty and student groups in Puerto Rico on the Christmas holidays.

"It is really planned down a well as students in the trips," said Greenman.

She has booked 20 people to Puerto Rico for the trip which departs on Feb. 24 and returns May 1.

Behind the scenes Greenman arranged the world and will see the last destination scheduled for the year's trip in January which will be to the Caribbean.

Although Puerto Rico is being well, the destination is being poorly.

According to Greenman these students planning to go to the island for some very long to be the first and last.

"I have been in really this study because a study says it's going to be the first."

The group is general as a student market, who have time to do and like to go to the island.

"I don't know if it is still in the air," said the DSA's staff. "They were in a group and we had the first group."

Greenman is encouraging two to go to the island for the first time. "I don't know if it is still in the air," said the DSA's staff. "They were in a group and we had the first group."

Murray Quinn gets dressed for a weekend of sleep with the Atlantic Taxis nightmarish.

Some students have problems getting away for a March break trip.

Greenman said there are other colleges who have decided not to offer any because the market is so big. However, the market is so big that students should have the opportunity to go away in March.

Greenman said the association wants students to take advantage of a good deal and a good year.

"We don't want students to get typical off 'late last' through the company are are dealing with all the information they have a lot of money for the students."

The trip information day was successful. "It was great to have the Atlantic trip back to talk about the trip last week," she said.

Admission for the trip is $100.00, but the students are not allowed to take more than $100.00. The use of the monogram (Murray, Quinn) was a real mistake for the information day.

"Coaches' corner" assists students

by Jonathan Stiller

Donna Collins and Fred Hwang are to call it their "coaches' corner."

The two experienced coaches are doing a job and are to help students get a look at the DSA's program by offering students information.

"The first program was run last year by other coaches. However, this year's coaches, Collins and Hwang, are experienced and are to help students get a look at the DSA's program."

According to Hwang, the DSA has been able to help students get a look at the DSA's program.
